

New Student Council Leaders Pledge To Make A Valuable Difference

On Tuesday 27th September, Grade 5 students found out the results of the Student Council elections.

Over the last two weeks, Grade 5 students who wanted to apply created their own campaigns. These included statements of intent, recorded speeches, persuasive posters, collection of signatures, and gathering support from classmates, faculty members, and other school staff.

Every student in Grade 5 watched the recorded speeches from every candidate. Then, they had the option to access a Google Form to vote for the student who they felt was the best fit for each position.

Mr Lewis and Mrs Savannah, who advise our Student Council, checked who had the most votes and prepared to share the results with our very excited and enthusiastic Grade 5s.

Congratulations go to Nusaybah Khan (Student Council President), Ghalia Al Darwish (Vice-President), Mohammed Al Sulaiti (Treasurer), Nayla Al Thani (Historian), and Ameena Al Suwaidi (Chief of Communications).

Student Council members now have the right and duty to make improvements to our school. These changes will be discussed in future meetings.

Student voice matters because all opinions are important and meaningful. Just because QAD students are young, that does not mean that we matter less than adults - We can, and we will, make a valuable difference.

Our new Student Council is ready to make a valuable difference

“I feel extremely honored and excited to be your new Student Council president. Thank you to those who voted for me, and also to those who voted for other candidates. I will give every student a voice and support their rights.” - Nusaybah Khan, Grade 5 student.

Grade 4 and Grade 5 Display of Knowledge

Last month, the Grade 4 and Grade 5 students were assigned the task to create their own project to show their understanding about specific topics including global crises.

Students had the chance to explore their areas of interest in depth. These included Islamic Culture, Animal Cruelty, Food Waste, Refugee Protection, Air Pollution, Climate Change, and much more.

Learners loved having the time and opportunity to become inquisitive experts in the topic that they had chosen. They became remarkably engaged and knowledgeable!

Students sharing their knowledge with their visitors

On Tuesday 27th September, students invited their families to visit their homerooms to learn more about the topic that they had engaged with.

When students finished displaying and sharing their knowledge with their visitors, they used the rest of their time to explore the presentations by their classmates.

Students organized the timing of their presentations so well that visitors could learn about many topics in a very short time.

Haya Al Naser, Grade 4 student, explained: “It was fun because parents got to see how our brains work in action. Also, our lovely personalities when we are in school and surrounded by friends.”

Students are looking forward to exploring many new topics from this day forward. We are excited to see what exciting learning is awaiting us in the future.
